

SAMMIN GANG IS DOOMED

The Pursuing Poses Continue Work of Extermination.

LIST OF VICTIMS REACHES FIVE.

Additional Particulars of Lynching of Sammin—Great Excitement Prevails.

A state of terror reigns in Decatur and Early counties, Georgia, as the result of the outrage upon the Ogletrees at Safford; the lynching of some of the perpetrators and the exciting chase of others of the gang.

The officers of the law are powerless to check the fury of the people, even if they were so disposed, as the feeling that the criminals have committed a diabolical crime and are deserving of no sympathy, is general.

Five members of the gang so far have been made way with, while an exciting chase is yet going on for the associates of those who have been disposed of.

It is said that no mistakes have been made by those who have taken the law in their own hands, for in each instance it was known beyond all doubt that the victim of the mob was guilty of the crime for which he was executed.

One of the captives was Charles Mack, the companion of Sammin. It was Sammin and Mack who outraged Mrs. Ogletree in the presence of her husband at Safford, one holding a pistol at the head of the husband to prevent his interference.

Mack was captured at Iron City by a white man named Cardell. Cardell tried to get his prisoner through to jail, hence secreted him. A mob of several hundred country people met Cardell and asked the whereabouts of his prisoner. He declined to say. A rope was quickly put about his neck and he was given ten minutes in which to give up the rapist or his life. He then told where the negro was. In a short while the crowd had Mack, who confessed, corroborating Sammin's statement. The men, he said, were banded together for murder, robbery and rape.

Sammin's Execution Dramatic.

The scene presented at the execution of Sammin was a dramatic one. Sammin had been completely identified by both Ogletree and Mrs. Ogletree and had not opened his mouth in denial of the charges. He was being led to a place of execution and those about him were discussing how they would put him to death. Suddenly Sammin turned to one of his captors and asked to be allowed to have a word. He was given permission to talk, and then in an off-hand way he told how he and his comrades had entered the store, robbed Ogletree, made him lead the way to Mrs. Ogletree and how one had held the gun against Ogletree's breast while his wife was at the mercy of his associate.

Sammin begged for his life, promising to take the authorities to where he could find six other members of the gang.

The mob, numbering some two hundred men, were too highly incensed, and nothing but justice on the spot would quench their thirst for revenge. They at once chained him to a tree and after mutilating parts of his body he was riddled with bullets.

Two Dead Near Bainbridge.

Early Sunday morning the bodies of two unknown negroes were found on the Plant System railroad embankment near Bainbridge. A big crowd congregated at the place and examined the bodies. It was believed by some that the men had been accidentally killed by a train, but others asserted that the negroes had been hanged by a mob and their bodies placed on the track to be run over by a train to make it appear that that was the means of their death.

So divided was the opinion that the coroner was summoned, and he empaneled a jury which, after several hours of deliberation, returned a verdict that the negroes came to their death accidentally.

Italian Papers Wrought Up.

According to the Rome correspondent of The London Daily Mail, the United States government has informed the Italian authorities that it is impossible to discover the Tallulah lynchings. The newspapers, the correspondent adds, are indignant, and vigorously denounce what they call "sham American civilization."

Suicide in New York City.

According to the annual police report there were in 1898, 673 cases of suicide in New York City. These were divided up in this way: By burning, 1; by drowning, 21; by suffocation by means of gas, 137; by hanging, 70; by jumping from balconies, 1; by jumping from buildings, 2; by jumping from roof, 1; by jumping from windows, 3; by knife, 24; by poison, 270; by razor 1, and by shooting, 142.

The police gave aid in 526 cases of attempted suicide, but that was not the total number of such cases, as 606 persons were arrested for trying to kill themselves, of whom 253, or nearly half, were women.—New York Press.

OLD-TIME KLONDIKE DAYS.

Life of White Trappers Before Gold Was Discovered.

One of the pioneer gold seekers, Dr. Sweeney, was fortunate in meeting with Geo. W. Carmack, the discoverer of the Klondike, and from him he gathered much interesting information concerning the habits of the Indian tribes on the Yukon and the white men who long before the discovery of the treasure hidden beneath the frozen moss and gravel of the Klondike Valley lived with them and shared the hardships of their daily life.

"Some of the things that Carmack told me," said Dr. Sweeney, "were entirely new to me, and all very interesting. One of the things I have always been anxious to know was how the white men lived who hunted and trapped along the Yukon in the days when it was thousands of miles to the trading posts and civilization. Carmack explained to me.

"We were compelled," he said, "to do just as the Indians did. In the summer time, besides game and fish, we ate berries, for Alaska is the home of all sorts of berries. And besides these we obtained other substitutes for the vegetables of civilization. The principal of these were grass roots, certain small bulbs or tubers, and the inside bark of various trees.

"In the winter we ate fish, meat, and berries, which the squaws dried in the summer, and stored away. Then also the little bulbs I have mentioned came in very handy. I have forgotten now what they were called, but they, as all old Alaska men know, form the principal food of the timber squirrels of that country during the winter. It was by rifling the hoards of these little animals that we obtained our supply of the bulbs in the winter. Their hoards are always to be found in a solitary spruce tree in a thicket of stunted pines. That was the way in which we located them. The reason for this I never knew. As a substitute for bread—of course, the Indians then had no flour—we ate a species of pudding made of the blood of the game we killed, boiled with dried berries and sometimes with the little bulbs from the squirrel hoards."

"I asked Carmack how the Indians in those days obtained salt for their meat. Every one knows that, to a white man at least, salt is a necessity, and not a mere flavoring matter. In answer Carmack told me something that was entirely new to me. He said that the Indians made it a practice not to throw away the water in which they boiled their meat, but allowed it to remain in the kettle. In course of a short time, he told me, the water or broth would become extremely salty and could then be maintained at whatever degree of saltiness deemed desirable by the addition of fresh water to replace some of the salt broth dipped out and thrown away."

The Trained Nurse's Baby.

This has become an experimental age for babies. The writer of this recently saw the ten-months-old baby of a doctor whose wife was a trained nurse. The baby had never worn a thread of flannel or shoes and stockings a minute in its life, and very seldom wore anything on its head. It was very sturdy-looking and had never known a moment's illness. Its clothing on a hot day consists of two pieces only, and the women can tell what they are. It is never tortured with starched embroidered and trimmed clothes.—Athens Globe.

Did you ever
See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snow-storm.

No need of this snow's fall.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation. It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

"I was a sufferer from female weakness. Every month regularly as the menses came, I suffered dreadful pains in uterus, ovaries were affected and had leucorrhoea. I had my children very fast and it left me very weak. A year ago I was taken with flooding and almost died. The doctor even gave me up and wonders how I ever lived.

PERIODS OF SUFFERING GIVE PLACE TO PERIODS OF JOY

"I wrote for Mrs. Pinkham's advice at Lynn, Mass., and took her medicine and began to get well. I took several bottles of the Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and can truly say that I am cured.
